

Abstract

A radiation detector that detects particles using memory cells as the detection medium. A particle strike causes a bit-flip in a memory cell, which is detected by a microprocessor. Advantageously, stacked arrays of memory cells are used to detect the direction of the particle strike. Further, the memory cells may comprise SRAM.